A number of things prevented the Fountain Valley Ski Team from having a more successful season. There was the lack of snow, and the few practices with inadequate facilities. This year's team seemed to lack a consistent potential both among the members and the coaches.

The season opened with Colorado Rocky Mountain School's invitation on January 26-27 in Aspen. Since the FVS team didn't have any Nordic competitors, their chances of winning an honorable position in the final results were largely reduced. In spite of the poor snow conditions, the slalom started at nine Saturday morning. In the two run sla-
